

Sprint Review Checklist

- The team gives a recap of the sprint goal to set the context for the review meeting
- Completed work items are shown to the Product Owner (and stakeholders). New insights are discussed
- Optional: work in progress is shown to get early feedback
- The team evaluates if the sprint goal was achieved. Important observations are discussed (this can already set the context for the retrospective)
- The team reflects if the next release is still on track and if any new insights are important to be discussed
- For unfinished work, the team discusses the remaining work and effort. This work is placed back on the product backlog (and can be picked up in the next sprint, if this is still desired. This is determined in the sprint planning)
